

Castles and Fortresses

History is present - and you can see it near and far around Terlan. Ruins of castles and fortresses of times long gone by can be seen on hills and slopes. Often they have been lovingly restored and are lasting witnesses to the rich history of the area.

At the southern entrance to the village of Terlan towers the ruin of Castle Neuhaus, known in the local vernacular as "Maultasch". It is an important site of Tyrolean history. There are few other castles with such an imposing presence in the scenery of the Etsch Valley.

Above the village of Siebeneich, at dizzying heights, the ruins of Castle Greifenstein, known as "Sauschloss" can be seen from afar.
